

Christmas Shop Talk

It would be difficult to imagine a more satisfactory shop for your Christmas buying than this—and that is not because of its size alone. Where else in all Indiana could one find so many varied stores under one roof? That is the attractive feature. Disagreeable weather makes not the slightest difference. Begin wherever you will here and you may check off every item on your list. Get a transfer slip from your first salesperson and have all your packages delivered together. Here is a wonderful stock of Jewelry, including Diamonds and Watches. A very great Silverware department. Cut Glass, China, Artistic Vases and Bric-a-Brac, Furniture, Rugs, Shoes, Slippers, Toys, Children's Books, Handkerchiefs, Ladies' Neckwear, Umbrellas, Men's Furnishings and, of course, everything to wear that a high-class dry goods shop would carry. Santa Claus's Wildest Dream Come True

The old fellow is satisfied—he has said so again and again—that this is the first perfect realization of what he considers the right sort of a TOY STORE. Here he is every day wandering about among the thousands of delightful toy conceits—picking out at his leisure the right things for the right little boys and girls and never failing to answer pleasantly the many questions with which his little friends belabor him. Come and see him this week, children (he leaves us Friday night), look over ALL THE TOYS and see the Punch and Judy show.
